

Demolition and Relocation

5.0 DEMOLITION AND RELOCATION

Example of building relocation

Demolition and relocation are permanent, as these changes cannot be removed or reversed. Both of these options should only be considered as a last resort. Every option should be explored before a decision is made to proceed with demolition or relocation. The Historic Preservation Overlay zones are areas where the City has decided there is important historic architecture and history that needs to be preserved through its built environment. Special care in these districts to be dedicated stewards of these historic resources is important. Preventative maintenance should be a goal of building owners and neighborhoods to prevent demolition or relocation.

Demolition and Relocation

5.0 DEMOLITION AND RELOCATION

Example of a building that was moved from its original location to a similar and appropriate setting